

Position Description:

Surveillance Detection
( SD )

Title:

Staff Instructor

Course Description

This course teaches surveillance detection principles. The focus of the course is non-technical means of detecting terrorist surveillance for the purpose of pre-empting terrorist attacks. This course is conducted in an academic learning environment using lecture, group discussions, and practical exercises. Classroom learning is reinforced through practical exercises to simulate real-world situations. The course objective is to provide participants with the ability to detect surveillance of high-risk personnel and vital facilities by terrorist groups. Course subjects include: (1) terrorist methods of operation; (2) foot and mobile surveillance techniques; (3) communication procedures; and (4) command and control of surveillance detection operations. Approximately 30% of this course is conducted in an academic learning environment with 70% fieldwork and practical exercises. At the conclusion of training, participants will be able to:

- Discuss the general perspectives of international terrorism and terrorist methods of operation.
- Describe how terrorists employ surveillance in selecting a target.
- Identify and discuss terrorist tactics in planning and/or deploying surveillance detection operations.
- Identify types and indication of surveillance by foot, mobile, or fixed surveillance operations.
- Discuss and enhance observations skills and memory recall techniques.
- Identify attack recognition signals.
- Discuss route analysis and site surveys of vital facilities.
- Design and develop routes to detect surveillance of high-risk personnel.
- Discuss risk assessment and the threat matrix program.
- Navigate in rural and urban areas.
- Use still and video photography for surveillance detection purposes.
- Plan, organize, and direct surveillance detection teams to identify indications of surveillance.
- Prepare a surveillance detection communication plan.
- Train subordinates in surveillance detection techniques.
